

“Enhancing Interprofessional
Collaboration and Learning for Strengthening Primary Health Care”

July 21-23, 2021

Faculty of Medicine, Public Health and Nursing
Universitas Gadjah Mada
Yogyakarta, Indonesia

TUFH THE NETWORK:
2021 TOWARD UNITY
FOR HEALTH

TUFH 2021 ABSTRACTS

Title	INTERNATIONAL COLLABORATION TO CREATE A DERMATOLOGY PROGRAM FOR PRIMARY CARE AMTC PROVIDERS
Type	TUFH Talk High-Quality Learning and Collaborations in the Health Workforce
1st Author	MARIE MECKEL
Co-Authors	George Barigye, Peter Rutabingwa, Rose Nassali, Edward Mutageki, Stephanie Roulier, Mallory Iverson
Country	UNITED STATES/ UGANDA
Abstract N ^o	TUFH704
Content	Continuing professional development is a powerful educational tool that can be used to update clinicians throughout the world. Professional clinicians need frequent updates on topics that will ultimately improve the quality and relevance of health care. these initiatives are most important in rural and underserved regions of the world. The Uganda allied health council, world AMTC network and AMTC's from Uganda and the United states to collectively worked together to identify knowledge gaps, jointly create a continuing professional development project and disseminate it throughout Uganda. We addressed technology barriers by utilizing the knowledge and skills of a local IT professional. this initiative relied on collaboration and exchange of information. the united states used this curriculum to update American PA's on rashes on dark skin which is a gap in the American educational PA education.